the company against a repetition of its trouble and expense next winter. As to the item of cost, there is little difference now as between water and ateam; but under more favorable conditions the cost of steam would be much less. This will account for the location of the plant on the West Side. There is water in abundance, and the plant can be located on the railroads, thus saving the cost of hauling coal. Slack coal can be laid down at a price that would mean a very great saving. This new plant is estimated to cost a quarter of a million dollars and will be large enough to meet all demands.

is quarter of a thinton nonlars and with the large enough to meet all demands for many years to come. The fact that the company will invest this much ad-ditional capital is proof that it has faith in the business future of the city and that it contemplates extensions of the lines.

After this new plant is established the present plant will be used as a car barn and repair shop. Work on the preparation for the first change is now reparation for the first change is now oing forward at this place. Walter P. Read, superintendent of he Salt Lake railroad system, when cen with respect to this matter, spoke with his usual caution. He verified the above statements except, as he put it, that the overhauling of the present plant was to prepare the company for an "emergency," and that while the new plant was inevitable, no definite action had yet been decided upon by the directors of the system.

JOE JENKINS' MINERALS.

Suit For the Recovery of a Valuable Collection

reporter, instituted proceedings in Justice Sommer's court yesterday to recover a cabinet of specimens, valued at $290, from Williams & Elmer of the Comstock watering-place. Mr. Jenkins, it seems, prides himself in the possession of a rare collection of mineral specimens, and has allowed the same to be exhibited in the place of business named. Williams & Elmer recently decided to paper a wall, and removed the specimens from close proximity to let the good work go on. But they did so without the aid and consent of the plaintiff; and, fearful best some should be misplaced, he seeks to take personal possession of the goods. He made his demand and was surprised to learn that the defendants instituted proceedings in arprised to learn that the defendants aimed to have a bill of sale and title the cabinet. A replevin was issued rom the court, and the defendants essured the constable that all the pre-ions minerals would be in place this morning.

FUNERAL OF MRS. SEARLES.

Obsequies Were Attended By a Large Number of Friends.

The funeral of Mrs. Ella F. Searles curred yesterday afternoon from the family residence on Sixth East street. HEARD AND SEEN IN TIMMONY'S COURT

Three typical hobos stood at the police court bar yesterday afternoon, all with one thought—'What shall our fin-They were charged with trespass on Short Line property, and each pleaded guilty as his name was called, Andrew Jones, the most typical of all, explained the circumstance:

Ye see, it was this way, judge: We were going to Mercur, and at the deport it commenced to rain, and at the depot it commenced to rain, and we ran inder the water tank."

"Did you get out?" asked the court.
"Great heavens, not." Andy turned pale at the suggestion.

"Where did you hear of Mercur."
"A man in California told us there was work there."
"Is your trunk packed?"

"Is your trunk packed?"
"Yes, sir."
"You have one hour to get to the train. Go."

John Lohngreen's appearance gave him away. He tottered up to the desk and looked at the court with a haif-shot ere. "And so you were drunk last night?"

"It will be about $3 this time, John, I can do you no good—beyond that."

Said William Foreign: "Twe been workin ever since the first day of May, your honor, and I did get a little out of the way yesterday, but it'll be all right, I guess, if you let me off." He was dis-charged.

"Mrs. McMills has relented of her un-neighborty conduct," said Clerk Diehl of the next case. "She promises to throw no more water into her neigh-bor's garden, and I ask that the case be dismissed."
"Let the order be made," directed the court, after some deliberation.

A. M. Filimore wanted his case post-poned for a day, because he had not been drunk for four months. Officer Eddington told a different story. He said Filimore was drunk, and had been for two or three days. "Why," he said, "I never saw a man filimore glasses to."

in"—Ach, Gott!" exclaimed the clerk, abruptly ending the officer's recital, casting his wild eye at the court as if to say—"Shall he be boiled in oil?"

"Well," remarked his honor, "I do not believe the officer meant it; still, we city officials have enough to do, without having such rank—I might say—puns forced upon us. "The guy I had the fight with," said he, "tried to have me petty larcenled, and he couldn't make that slick, so he goes and gets me pinched."

The court sat down on the defendant at this juncture, and the latter had no more to say, until the court said "five days." Then he whispered to Jailer Kimball: "Gee, I expected forty."

"You should be thankful it is not a more serious charge," remarked the court, as he sentenced John Morgan to five days for drunkenness. Morgan tried to take a lawyer's wife away from her husband on the street. Sunday night, and but for the lady's aversion to publicity would have been tried for assault.

J. C. Herbert, another one, said he just slapped the old mare up a bit and she quite unexpectedly went faster han a walk.
"It will be $2."
"Very well," replied the defendant, in cheerful tone.

J. E. Starbuck was fined $2 for fast driving, to which charge he pleaded guilty. "But," said the offender, "I saw three others do the same, and they were not arrested." In a more injured
